

Chords: Ebmaj7, Dm

1 2 D.C. al fine

1 2

There is a majesty about those evenings when the light gently fades, the blue turns to black and the universe reveals itself in the great spaces between the bright stars. It's quite humbling to be such a small yet complex part of something so huge and magnificent, and realising there's nothing between us and the edge of time except a fiddle and the occasional clutch of notes disappearing into the void of prayers. Written 17/04/07. Chords by Bob Turner, Cameron Robson and Gregor Lowrey. Recorded on: The Long Road and The Far Horizons (Gavin Marwick).

~ THE FIRST STARS OF EVENING ~

© Gavin Marwick

$\text{♩} = 140$

A simple and restful though dark little tune written on the mandolin. Written 08/12/04.

~ WATCHING NIGHTFALL ~

© Gavin Marwick

$\text{♩} = 98$

A simple evening and the stars appearing one by one as the dark spreads across the sky. Written Aug '94.